INTRODUCTION

ARTISTS IN SCHOOLS & COMMUNITIES

ROSTER

Artists In Schools & Communities (AISC) is a residency program for K-12 schools and community organizations, with matching funds from the South Dakota Arts Council (SDAC). Artists In Schools & Communities residencies range in length from one week to a full school year. A project can be designed to fit all elementary through secondary school needs regardless of size, locale, or existing arts curriculum. Residencies can also be designed for the community at large. By working with teachers, parents and the community, an artist will create a residency that can inspire participants to learn more, not just about art, but life itself. These artists share their talents with students of all ages in workshops, demonstrations, seminars and residencies both in and outside the classroom.

Even though a residency may last only a short time, participation in AISC can have lasting results. Artists can help teachers further develop arts curriculum and creative teaching of the arts and assist communities in the development of life-long learning experiences for people of all ages. The entire school system and community benefit by strengthening their joint commitment to the arts as basic to education.

Artists In Schools & Communities are professionals, selected by panels of in-state and out-of-state experts who evaluate the quality of the artists' work. An Arts-In-Education Panel reviews the background experience that qualifies each artist to work in an education setting. Finally, the artists are approved by the SDAC.

AISC

APPLICATION PROCESS

Eligibility

Due to the increase in applications for Artists In Schools & Communities and limited funding, requests for residencies are competitive. Applications from schools and community organizations are reviewed by the Arts Council and the Arts-In-Education Panel, with site selection preference given to:

- * long-term residencies of one month or more.
- * new sites.
- * repeat sites requesting new artists and/or new arts disciplines.
- * schools committed to building their arts-in-education program.
- * geographic distribution of residencies.

Matching funds for residencies

Artists' fees are supported on a matching funds basis between the sponsoring organization and the Arts Council. The cost to a participating school does not necessarily have to come from the existing school budget. A private business or individual may provide matching funds, as well as parent-teacher groups, service clubs, local arts organizations, special fundraising events, or any combination.

Artist fees

| Dual Artist Residencies: | Total Cost One Week | $1,600 |
| | School/Community Cost | 800 |
| | SDAC Match | 800 |

Sponsor responsibilities

- The sponsor will pay the artist on the last day of the residency, or as negotiated between sponsor and artist prior to the start of the residency. (See AISC Grant Award Letter below.)
- The sponsor will provide lodging for the artist during the residency. Artists may be housed in private homes or in a hotel/motel or similar facility, provided there is no cost to the artist.
- Sponsors are also responsible for all residency supplies. Types of supplies and their cost should be negotiated with the artist well in advance of the start of the residency.

Application form

A copy of the AISC Sponsor application form is on page 25 of this booklet. Additional forms may be photocopied or are available from the South Dakota Arts Council, 800 Governors Drive, Pierre, SD 57501-2294, Phone (605) 773-3131 or in-state toll-free 1-800-423-6665, FAX (605) 773-6962.

Deadline

April 1, 2006 is the postmark deadline for sponsors to submit the completed AISC application form for residencies scheduled July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2007. Grant awards will be announced in May.

PLANNING A RESIDENCY

The role of the artist is to design programs that inspire and involve participants in the process, technique, and philosophy of a particular art form. The sponsor's role is to provide a supportive environment where the artist can conduct activities with students and faculty.

AISC Grant Award Letter

Approved sites will receive a grant award letter and payment from SDAC for one-half the amount of the artist's fee plus artist's round trip travel to the residency site. At the end of the residency or as determined between the artist and the sponsor, the school will pay the artist the total residency fee which will include the sponsor's matching funds.

The SDAC staff will furnish the sponsor with an AISC contract agreement with residency dates, payment amounts and residency guidelines for signature.

Project Director

Selecting a local Project Director is required. The project director works with SDAC and the artist to coordinate all residency details. Based on school and community interest, a Local AISC Committee may help in planning the residency.

Pre Residency Planning

Prior to the residency, the SDAC staff will send an AISC planning manual, AISC contract, and a photo with a press release about your artist.

The artist will contact the Project Director a month before the residency starts. To insure a successful residency, the Project Director and artist need to discuss expectations, scheduling, equipment and supply needs, teacher workshops and community involvement.

Continued...

Scheduling

Artists may be scheduled for up to four hours (classroom periods) per day for work with core groups of students, allowing in-depth exposure to the artist and art form. Long-term residencies allow artists to become members of the community, working half-time with residency participants and half-time as producing artists on their own projects. For a long-term visual arts residency, the sponsor is required to provide studio space and utilities appropriate to the artist's needs.

The artist is not viewed as a member of the teaching staff, but as a professional resource person, providing enrichment to the existing school curriculum. During a school residency, the regular teacher must be actively present in the classroom. Residencies may not be used to fulfill the Department of Education's fine arts credit requirement for graduation.

Community involvement

The Artists In Schools & Communities program is designed to serve not only students, but also parents, teachers and the community. Consider these possibilities:

Workshops for teachers and community members. Presentations to parent-teacher organizations, local arts council, service clubs, libraries or school boards.

Special events with the artists such as exhibitions, readings, performances, lectures or demonstrations. Invite the whole community!

Interviews with newspapers, radio and television stations.

Apprentice programs where students interested in the particular art form are chosen to work closely with the artist.

Studio time when faculty, students and community members can observe an artist at work.

EVALUATION OF RESIDENCY

Prior to or shortly after the residency, an evaluation form will be sent to the sponsor. The evaluation form must be returned to the South Dakota Arts Council within 30 days of residency completion. This process helps both the sponsor and artist improve the AISC program. Subsequent grants are contingent upon receipt of completed evaluation reports.

YOUTH AT RISK RESIDENCY PROGRAM

South Dakota Arts Council's Artists In Schools & Communities Youth At Risk (YAR) program offers professional, endorsed South Dakota artists (dance, literature, multi-disciplinary, music, theater, traditional arts and visual arts) for residencies of one week to one semester in alternative school environments. Artists work directly with recognized youth-at-risk as part of the daily curriculum. Participating artists have experience working with at-risk young people.

The residency program includes opportunities for social and creative skill development. Experiencing the arts can aid in development of self-expression and self-esteem leading to successful fulfillment of leisure time and after hours activities.

Goals for Youth At Risk Residencies

1. Identify constructive means for self-expression.
2. Promote creative thinking.
3. Focus on problems of low self-esteem.

Artists Fees

Youth At Risk program fees are the same as standard residency fees found on page 2. Only alternative schools may apply for the YAR program.

SPECIAL EDUCATION ARTS FOR LIFE (SEAL)

Special Education Arts for Life (SEAL) will focus on providing arts experiences for pre K-12 students with special needs utilizing endorsed artists with the Artists In Schools & Communities program.

SEAL residencies will serve students under Special Education programs in South Dakota schools, as well as students enrolled in institutional programs.

Program goals are:

1. Provide arts experiences for special needs students pre K-12 for life long experiences to:
 - * encourage artistic expression enlightening awareness of ideas and feelings.
 - * promote a more positive self-image increasing sensitivity in the everyday experience.
2. Involve arts education as a meaningful part of the disabled child's basic education.
3. Provide additional residency opportunities for artists working to make the arts basic to education.

SEAL residency fees are at the same rate as AISC residency fees found on page 2.

OTHER SDAC PROGRAMS FOR SCHOOLS

Professional Development Grants assist teachers in the initiation or improvement of arts programs in their school. Up to $500, based on cash match, provide teachers an opportunity for artistic growth.

Regular classroom teachers who spend at least fifty percent of their time as visual arts, literature, music, dance or theater educators are eligible to apply. The applicant must be a staff member of the South Dakota school system through which they are making application. Deadline is 30 days prior to event.

Touring Arts bring performances and exhibitions to South Dakota communities by providing matching funds for the artistic fees. Artists representing a variety of disciplines are available through the Arts Council.

Solo Artists In Libraries (SAIL) is available during the summer for communities with populations of 5,000 or less. Contact your local library or the SDAC office for more information.

DANCE

ROBYN

STARKS HOLCOMB

An experienced musician, actor, dancer and choreographer, Robyn Starks Holcomb has taught the elements of dance to people of all ages. She is on the faculty of the Dance Gallery of Sioux Falls, and created and choreographed At Your Service, a Broadway-style mini-ballet. Her choreography has been seen on the stages of professional, community and high school theater associations, as well as area churches. As music director and choreographer for the Children's Theatre Company of Sioux Falls, she has created original material for professional touring shows dealing with youth issues. Starks Holcomb has recently joined the faculty of the Black Hills Summer Institute of the Arts, an extension of the Vocal Arts and Opera Theatre School at Black Hills State University, as the body movement instructor. Her residencies will introduce students to a full range of dance styles, including Hip-Hop and Broadway, leading to a community or school performance. In addition to teaching dance as athletic art-in-motion, residencies can be constructed around a community or school need for a professional choreographer for a musical or theatrical production. Residencies in the southeastern or central regions of the state are preferred.

DANCE

YAO

KOUADIO

A native of Cote d'Ivoire on the west African coast, Yao Kouadio was raised in the Baoule tradition from the Akan ethnic group. He was initiated into the cultural traditions of his people, then trained as a choreographer in Abidjan, the largest city in his native land. Kouadio studied under Rose Marie Guiraud, traveling with her dance company and sharing his African heritage. His learning activities have special appeal to younger children studying Africa as part of their social studies core curriculum, as well as fulfilling core curriculum studies in fine arts and dance. Kouadio has danced with the Ellen Steward theater in New York, the Dayton Contemporary Dance Company and the Schwindosky Ballet in Germany, among other global companies.

LIEN PALM

A native of Rapid City, Melanie Lien Palm performed professionally for twenty years in eleven countries throughout North America, Europe and Asia. She has been a choreographer and dance and movement teacher for nearly as long, working with students in venues as diverse as Vassar College and the Sunrise School in Spearfish. Residencies will focus on creative dance, and, if requested, ballet, modern dance or yoga can be studied by students or teachers. Students will be exposed to a wide variety of music, including international cultures and languages. Teacher in-service sessions are available for incorporating dance into the classroom to support core academics. Curricula can be involved in the residency with a lecture demonstration and performance possible.

B.J.

BUCKLEY

B.J. Buckley is a poet and writer with over 20 years of experience in Artists In Schools & Communities programs throughout the Rocky Mountain West, the Dakotas and Alaska. Her residencies emphasize the process of writing as a way of discovering both the external world and the internal landscape of the mind and heart. She encourages teachers to be active partners in all residency activities. Incorporating other art forms such as bookmaking, origami, painting and oral performance into her residencies, Buckley makes an effort to introduce her students to the best work of writers in their region and in other cultures. She has extensive experience working with Senior citizens, Native American students, children whose first language is not English and students with special needs. Buckley is the 1999 poetry winner of the Annual Writers Exchange, sponsored by Poets & Writers, New York and the 2003 Rita Dove Poetry Prize from the Center for Women Writers. She is widely published.

DARYL NGE

CHINN

A poet and artist-in-residence since 1986 for the states of Alaska, California, Montana and Nevada, with experience in the Arts-in-Corrections program of California, Daryl Ngee Chinn guides students to diving into language, feelings, families and their communities. His residencies help student-writers to learn how to play with, write with, look at, recite, read and perform their work. Senses are sharpened, working with and respecting others is encouraged, and often a publication of the students' writings is produced. Classroom sessions include exercises dedicated to examining the environment of each student, in the home, the family, the community and world of nature.

DAVID ALLAN

EVANS

David Allan Evans was appointed Poet Laureate of South Dakota by the governor in June of 2002. He is the recipient of creative writing fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Bush Artist Foundation and the South Dakota Arts Council. Evans has been a Fulbright Scholar twice in China, and his poetry has been translated into Chinese by the scholar Zhang Ziqing. The author of 2004's The Bull Rider's Advice, he has published several books of poems, the most recent being Decent Dangers, collections of short stories and memoirs of his studies in China. With his wife Jan, Evans wrote Double Happiness, Two Lives in China. Over 250 of Evans' poems have been published in magazines, and his poetry, along with short stories and essays, have been reprinted in over 60 anthologies. A number of his poems also appear in middle and high school anthologies. Evans encourages students to have fun with language and believe they have a unique way with words. If possible, he prefers to integrate writing with other school disciplines such as science, art and athletics. Students write frequently and often create an anthology of writings to be published after the residency.

CANDY

HAMILTON

Candy Hamilton is a published poet and story writer. In addition to completing her master's degree at USD, Hamilton has worked as a researcher for film companies, serving as a consultant to the films Incident at Oglala and Life of Leonard Peltier. Her poetry has been included in Woven on the Wind (2001), Prairie Peaks and Skies (1998) and a variety of other collections. Her articles and stories have been published in Christian Science Monitor, People, South Dakota Magazine and Winds of Change, among others. Hamilton's residencies will focus on the impact of reading on writing and vice versa, using sensory descriptions to enliven short fiction, personal essays and poetry. Using the five physical senses and emotions improves writing. Reading skills, vocabulary, observation skills and general communication create strong writing. Residency activities may include collecting family stories and developing family reading/writing time. Presentations are available for adults or children.

S. ABENA

SONGBIRD

A member of the Missiquoi Abenaki tribe, S. Abena Songbird brings the voices of Native American poets to South Dakota classrooms through her residencies. From her experiences as a Poet in the Schools in California, Songbird has assembled effective tools and techniques to plant the seeds of poetry, to help new voices emerge. In addition to her school residencies, she has read her poetry at the Aboriginal Voices Festival in Toronto, at the Native American Cultural Center in San Francisco and has been a featured poet at the “Spirit in the Words” series in New York. Songbird’s residencies will introduce forms of poetry with music and multi-media, and emphasize group process writing and personal journaling. She works to bolster self-esteem and introduce poetry as a vehicle for at-risk students to confront and transcend personal or environmental barriers and difficulties. Songbird uses her own poetry, along with that of Native poets N. Scott Momaday, Joy Harjo, Lydia Whirlwind Soldier and others, to illustrate the relevance of poetry to modern realities.

DOUBLE PLAY

FLUTE AND TUBA DUO

Double Play, a unique professional flute and tuba duo, has been entertaining audiences of all ages since 1989. Although based in Phoenix, Amy Ridings, flutist, and Patrick Sciannella, tubaist, are community educational artists in Arizona, Idaho, North and South Dakota, and have performed in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Mexico. Their classroom workshops allow students to participate and perform on many levels: playing in a “bottle band,” to demonstrate the four characteristics of sound, leading a blind (or blindfolded) individual, “signing” a song and learning about the special relationship between guide dogs and their human partners are just a few of the opportunities available. Special sessions with young instrumental and choral students allow for unique and rewarding collaborative performances with these classically trained musicians.

THE GRANARY GIRLS

JODI RITTER & PATTY KAKAC

The goal of the Granary Girls is to teach students collective songwriting techniques, passing on an awareness of songwriting as an artform anyone can participate in, regardless of age, race, ethnic background or education. Collective songwriting helps in community building by encouraging community stories, ideas and strengths, creating a stronger “sense of place.” Each community has heroes close enough for students to touch and talk with, to foster self-esteem and awareness of their own potential. Collective songwriting allows students to tell their own stories, encourages critical thinking skills through discussion of social and historical topics and promotes research into community history, geography and culture. The Granary Girls perform throughout the upper midwest and are heard nationwide on public folk radio programs. Their blending of vocal harmonies with guitar, bass, piano, harmonica, penny whistle and autoharp makes for a melodious good time.

MUSIC

WILLSON & MCKEE

Willson & McKee mix the right amount of information with participation to equal a large amount of learning and fun. Residencies begin with a 45-minute assembly to introduce students to the music and dance of Ireland and Scotland. The residency program includes songs, dance, storytelling, cultural information, hands-on activities, and close student/artist interaction, culminating in a student performance for parents and community. The duo stresses the enjoyment and connection of "folk" music to all aspects of traditional and contemporary life, and encourages students to examine their own cultural heritage. This husband and wife duo bring 15 years of touring and educational programming, as well as national and international awards, to their programs. Their high quality of musicianship is illustrated by a 2002 National Dulcimer Championship, first and second place honors in an international Irish songwriting competition in 2003 and a second place in 2005. They have shared stages with premier Celtic performers and win rave reviews for their recordings. Easy-going, sunny personalities make Willson & McKee a treat to work with.

THEATER

LAURIE BLOCK

STORYTELLER

Poet and playwright Laurie Block has taught creative writing and storytelling to all ages since 1987. His most recent book is a collection of bilingual poetry, Foreign Graces/Bendiciones Ajenas. As a storyteller, he uses a well-traveled suitcase jammed with everyday materials to improvise props and costumes for stories that grab attention, liberate laughter and invite participation. In workshops, he aims to support curriculum goals and enhance literacy skills by helping each student express and record his or her own narratives. Students share events, memories and ideas, using dramatic techniques such as voice, visualization and mime to provide the tone and sensory information that creates powerful word pictures. Creative writing exercises, story starters, memory triggers, drama and hands-on experiences motivate students to cross the bridge from oral to written expression. By the end of his residency, students could be recording stories in various media, including print, visual arts, improvisation and guided narrative drama.

Linda Bruning graduated from Yankton College with a BA degree in theater. Over the past 25 years she has acted, directed and conducted theater residencies throughout the United States and Canada. Her plays include Morning Glories and Women Who Cook, over 50 children's plays and an adaptation of A Christmas Carol which have been performed by schools and theaters across the US. She has presented workshops at conferences for the professional development department of The Perpich Center and wrote the theater curriculum for the North Dakota Arts Council's Lewis and Clark Touring Arts Trunk. In performance-based residencies elementary students learn to communicate, collaborate, develop teamwork skills and keep deadlines while preparing a final performance complete with costumes and scenery. Junior/Senior High residencies include Rappin' With Will, a novel approach to Shakespeare using rap music, or Slam Jam, a performance art/spoken word writing and performance residency. Contact the artist to design a residency to meet your specific needs.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE COMPANY OF SIOUX FALLS

The Children's Theatre Company of Sioux Falls (CTCSF) is a professional, non-profit theater in residence on the Augustana College campus. CTCSF is composed of adult professional artists who are also educators. CTCSF is committed to creating work that will delight, inspire and educate audiences of all ages. CTCSF residency programs educate students about their responsibilities in our changing society. Using music, dance and drama their residencies provide students the opportunity to be involved in theater while learning tools for celebrating diversity and making positive life choices. CTCSF residencies can culminate with your students starring in their own production for your community. Start the week with a CTCSF performance, follow-up with residency activities, and conclude the week with a student production. Check the Touring Arts Roster to learn about fees and booking a performance as a complementary residency activity.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE COMPANY OF SOUTH DAKOTA

An outreach of the Black Hills Playhouse, the Children's Theatre Company of South Dakota (CTCSD) was created to bring quality theater experiences to children in rural communities across the state. Using original productions and professional artists, CTCSD incorporates positive themes stressing the importance of individuality, community and the environment. The one-week residency culminates in a musical production using up to 54 local children, with suitable parts designed for every age, skill and experience level. The production experience includes five days of intensive rehearsals, with junior and senior high students also serving as assistant directors, sound and lighting operators following instruction by theater professionals. Technical requirements are minimal in order to access even the smallest community.

FULLER

An alumnus of SDSU theater, Vickie Fuller has performed with such groups as Prairie Repertory Theatre, the Black Hills Playhouse, and Bare Bodkins Theatre. She has a South Dakota teaching certificate with endorsements in math, language arts and theater. Fuller was a full time teacher for five years and a substitute teacher for seven years. This is her fifth year with the Artists In Schools & Communities program. She has extensive experience in acting, including commercials and training videos. She has also directed and judged one-act plays and oral interpretation. For elementary students, Fuller's residencies focus on body language and character development. She enjoys creating elementary student performances that deal with issues such as bullying and character counts. For older students, she can introduce oral interpretation or work with them on a Shakespeare unit. Her favorite type of work is to help students fine tune their performances. Through theater and improvisational games, introduction of the VOTE technique and character analysis, students and teachers can enjoy a variety of options with Fuller's residencies.

TOM

ROBERTS

Tom Roberts has worked across South Dakota for nearly 24 years as a professional actor, writer, director, producer and performing arts educator. He has also become a requested speaker and storyteller. Among his stage credits are historic portrayals of Gutzon Borglum, Theodore Roosevelt, Mark Twain, Badger Clark and Will Rogers. He has extensive commercial experience as on-screen and voice talent, as well as being a character model for print advertisements. Since 2002, Roberts has promoted his Christmas book 'Twas the Night Before Christ as a benefit for Children's Home Society. In 2002, he appeared in the film Class President. Roberts was the first recipient of the Sioux Falls Mayor's Outstanding Artist Award in 1999, and that same year was featured in an entire chapter of the book Turning Dreams Into Success. Roberts has conducted residencies for schools, libraries, community arts agencies, juvenile and adult correctional facilities and organizations that serve individuals with disabilities. His sessions focus on helping students develop a better understanding and appreciation of the performing arts. Through the use of creative games, exercises, demonstrations and humor, participants learn how to cultivate communication and behavior skills that can be applied not only on the stage, but also in the theater of everyday life.

DALLAS

CHIEF EAGLE II

Dallas Chief Eagle II is a K-12 art teacher with a master's degree in guidance counseling and personnel services. A recognized master of the Lakota hoop dance, Chief Eagle has worked as an artist-in-residence and mentor to other dancers through his Hoop Dance Society on the Pine Ridge Reservation. A member of the Rosebud Lakota nation, he introduces students to Lakota boy-to-man, girl-to-woman character-building lessons and activities through storytelling, games and teaching of the hoop dance. Over 300 hoops are used in a residency which focuses on self-balance, rhythm and movement. The finale of the residency is a school assembly or public performance during which core groups of students demonstrate the skills they have acquired throughout the week.

DUANE REICHERT

RODEO CLOWN

Duane Reichert presents a performance genre unique to the culture of the American West—the rodeo clown. Reichert opens a dramatic, colorful world to students with the use of stylized make-up, traditional clown garb, comedy skits and animals. He will work with a core group of students to create their own interpretation of slapstick comedy skits for a school or community showcase. Reichert has performed for over six million rodeo fans throughout North America in his 40 years of experience as a rodeo clown. In 1996 and 1997, Reichert was chosen as the Barrelman Specialty Act at the First Frontier Circuit Finals Rodeo. In 1999, 2001 and again in 2002, he was an opening act at the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas.

LARRY

YAZZIE

A member of Iowa's Meskwaki/Dine nation, Larry Yazzie is a renowned fancy dancer and founder of the Native Pride Dancers. With native dance groups and as a solo performer, Yazzie has toured the US, Canada, Europe and South America. He danced at the Atlanta Summer Olympic Games and in the film Grey Owl with Pierce Brosnan. He toured with the Kevin Locke Trio during the early 2000s, and most recently performed in Belo, Brazil in 2005 as part of the Belo Horizonte International Cultural Festival. Yazzie's week-long school residencies will instill a sense of cultural awareness and pride to American Indian school-age children. He also strives to promote a positive image and promote cultural diversity among non-American Indian students throughout the state of South Dakota. Through the traditional art of dance, combined with music and storytelling, Yazzie works to make a positive impact on youth, as others have influenced him.

CHERYL

PETERSON HALSEY

If visual art were science, Cheryl Peterson Halsey would be a researcher. In her residencies, Cheryl uses individual, group and even all-school projects to stimulate students' curiosity and develop their problem solving skills by exploring the endless possibilities involved in the creation of art. Employing a variety of familiar and easily accessible materials and techniques, her residency activities often extend to at-home projects and impact the existing curriculum. According to the artist, "Common classroom exercises can be approached as possibilities for sophisticated artistic applications." When working with her students, she particularly enjoys drawing, sculpture, construction and group installations. Cheryl has conducted residencies throughout South Dakota and in Canada. Her commissioned installations can be seen at Children's Care Hospital and School and McKennan Hospital's Pediatric Clinic, both in Sioux Falls, and her artwork is included in many private collections.

NANCY

LOSACKER

Nancy Losacker has found that the children of South Dakota are hungry for art—hungry for something they can get their hands on and shape to their own ideas and imaginations. Children delight in the feast of form that clay provides, and Losacker guides students in the discovery that they, too, can shape the earth. Through Losacker's residencies, students who have had limited exposure to the making of art and three-dimensional forms are able to form their ideas into art through the medium of clay. A 2000 recipient of the South Dakota Artist's grant, Losacker has exhibited extensively, including a 2003 solo show at the Allison Gallery in Greenville,

TN. Her work was exhibited in Brookings during the re-opening show at the South Dakota Art Museum.

BOB H.
MILLER

Bob H. Miller works to encourage and cultivate the creativity of each individual student. Students can explore any of several novel and/or fundamental processes, with supportive attention to their personal skill-set needs. Through the resulting works, students find outlets for personal expression, build self-esteem, and gain a deepened appreciation for the arts. Personal exploration, self-motivation and a healthy dose of fun are encouraged. Residencies may include fundamental drawing and painting instruction, basic animation, collage and batik. Miller has worked with the children of South Dakota for over 25 years through the Artists In Schools & Communities program. He is a highly respected and widely exhibited, diverse and prolific artist. He was recently included in the “American Perspectives” exhibit, which debuted at the Tokyo Metropolitan Museum of Photography. His collages are touring regionally in a solo exhibit, “Sleeping Sickness,” and his alternative photograms were featured in a recent issue of Black & White magazine.

ANN TAECKER

The word art often conjures up visual images of two-dimensional art forms such as paintings or portraits. Stepping outside those boundaries, Ann Taecker works in non-traditional art forms—specifically fiber arts. The fiber arts are among the world’s oldest, yet most common, forms of artistic expression. Mankind has been decorating and embellishing garments since just after Adam and Eve started wearing clothes. Combining this tradition with a contemporary twist, Taecker brings the art of painting on silk to students and/or community adults. Working only with red, yellow and blue dyes, she brings students a wealth of possibilities as a means of expressing their individuality. In her residencies, students learn how colors interact with each other, how colors change when placed next to each other and how to make color dance. Working with silks, students engage the sense of touch as well as sight and gain an appreciation for natural fibers. Taecker’s residencies can include individual student projects or group projects in the classroom, community adult workshops and teacher in-service training—all with an emphasis on experiencing joy in the art of creativity and the sensory experience of working with silk.

MARY

WIPF

Mary Wipf has participated in over 500 weeks of AISC residencies throughout South Dakota in over 75 school systems, community libraries and special needs institutions. She believes that art—the creative expression of one’s unique self—helps to satisfy the need for communication at a basic level: “Through art, we experience a broadened and more intense awareness of ourselves and the world around us. Art helps us to find truth and understanding. The children of South Dakota are our most important resources. It is imperative that their creativity be sparked and cultivated to enrich their lives and at the same time enhance society as a whole.” Her residencies may include slide presentations, student classroom work, teacher in-service workshops and community presentations. Media explored may encompass printmaking, drawing, papermaking, marbling or creation of a mural. A paper marbling residency is an excellent opportunity for integrating art with other subject matter such as science, history or English.

DARWIN

WOLF

Darwin Wolf began sculpting in 1979 at Northern State University and has developed his work through experimentation in bronze foundries while becoming an accomplished sculptor. His commissions and award-winning work can be viewed on his website. Wolf’s residencies delve into many aspects of art and the works of the Great masters Donatello, Leonardo, Michelangelo and Raphael, better known as Ninja Turtles to the younger students. Quick and fun history lessons are inserted here and there as students become sculptors. They also learn how molten bronze is poured to become works of art. Wolf enjoys both conceptual and figurative sculpture so he’s happy to coach students in whatever direction they choose. Sponsoring organizations can opt for students to work in air-dry clays with excellent results, or students can work in sculpting wax if they want their work to ultimately be cast in bronze. With whatever sculpting material is selected, the eye is trained to see in a new way while students learn fun facts about the creation and creators of sculpture. Above all, they will understand that sculpture is for everyone to enjoy.

MARK

ZIMMERMAN

Mark Zimmerman presents residencies which pursue a dual emphasis. First, the student's imaginative powers are exercised with supportive attention to the essential idea that if a child can imagine something, he can do it. Second, the student's technique and ability to manipulate the formal building blocks of visual art are developed sequentially to provide increasingly refined tools for self-expression. Once students learn the ABCs, sentence structure and grammar of art, they can better tell their own stories visually. Mark holds BFA and MS degrees in printmaking as well as an MFA in painting.

TEACHER INSERVICE PROGRAM

In addition to the student residency programs detailed in this roster, South Dakota Arts Council offers an innovative program for teachers, curriculum directors and school administrators.

Many of the professional artists appearing in the Artists In Schools & Communities (AISC) Roster are also available to school districts as inservice presenters and workshop facilitators. Artists involved in the Teacher Inservice program provide educators with the creative tools and artistic skills necessary for developing arts education curricula. Artists are available for presentations, inservices and one week summer residencies.

Artist Honorarium:

One Day Inservice:

|-------------|-------|
| Total cost | $240 |
| School cost | $120 |
| SDAC match | $120 |

One Week Residency:

|-------------|---------|
| Total cost | $1,200 |
| School cost | $600 |
| SDAC match | $600 |

Travel: SDAC will reimburse the artist's mileage at State rates.

Supplies: The school or sponsoring organization is responsible for the cost of any necessary supplies. This should be negotiated with the artist prior to the inservice activity.

Application procedure: Schools interested in the Teacher Inservice program should contact SDAC to request a list of artists available for conducting inservices and residency workshops. It is the school's responsibility to contact an artist and negotiate a mutually agreeable date before submitting a formal application to the Arts Council.

Deadline: This application (which must include the name of the selected artist and the dates of the inservice activity) should be submitted to SDAC at least 30 days prior to the scheduled activity.

Application form: The Artists In Schools & Communities Sponsor Application form should also be used to apply for a Teacher Inservice Program.

Availability of funds: Teacher Inservice grant funds will be available for activities occurring July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2007. Since funding is limited, grants will be awarded on a first-come, first-served basis.

Payment: Approved sites will receive a grant award letter and payment from SDAC for one-half the amount of the artist's honorarium plus the artist's round trip travel reimbursement to the site. On the last day of the activity, the sponsor will pay the artist the total fee, which includes the grant award from SDAC and the sponsor's matching funds.
